The gender pay gap shows the difference between the average earnings of men and women. This is expressed as a percentage of men's earnings. Gender pay gap reporting is calculated in both median and mean averages. This helps give a more balanced overview of the gender pay gap across an organisation.

- The median average is calculated by listing all salaries in numerical order and selecting the middle number (if there is an even number of results, the median will be the mean of the two central numbers).
- The mean average is calculated by adding up all of the salaries and dividing it by the number of people in an organisation.

The chart above shows the gender pay gap for Honda of the UK Manufacturing, alongside the UK's national gender pay gap overall figure for comparison. Our results show that the median average pay of our women is 2.73% lower than our men, significantly lower than the UK national median of 15.5%.

The gender pay gap differs from equal pay, which is the pay difference between men and women who carry out the same jobs, similar jobs or work of equal value.
